A Note on the Eclipse

Written by: Frater Mortrex

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

Throughout history, eclipses have captivated humanity. In ancient Greece, Rome, China, and Mesoamerica, solar and lunar eclipses were seen as powerful omens. Yet, while many feared them, great thinkers turned these celestial events into opportunities for reflection, challenge, and change.

The Greeks, like Thales of Miletus, used eclipses to challenge superstition and embrace reason. Thales predicted a solar eclipse in 585 BCE, showing that knowledge could replace fear. In Rome, poets like Virgil used eclipses to reflect on destiny and power, calming the masses through art and philosophy. In China, an eclipse could signify a loss of the emperor's divine right, leading to reflection on the morality of leadership. The Mayans, with their deep understanding of cosmic cycles, saw eclipses as moments of renewal, symbolizing life's eternal struggle between light and darkness.

These cultures used eclipses as metaphors to examine power, fate, and justice. They understood that art, writing, and philosophy could interpret the world and challenge tyranny, superstition, and oppression. Today, in the face of superstition and oppression, we can use our creativity to inspire, question, and transform. Like the ancients, we turn to reason, art, and philosophy to shape a future where truth and freedom triumph over fear and control.

Let us write, speak, create, and share — just as the great minds of history did.

Love is the Law, Love under Will.

Dark Night of the Soul - An Experience

Written by: Soror Anubis de la Luna

I am lost in the darkness, again.

I drop to my knees in despair, but only for a moment.

I am reminded that there is more than fear here.

A flicker of hope muted by rocks and boulders littering the jagged terrain.

Cold and muddy, I trudge onward.
Every step is a victory from the step before.
Small pools of liquid are scattered sparsely.
They taste bittersweet; poison mixed with honey.

The scent of ambergris chokes the air,
The words of the mystics echo in my head,
“How splendid is the Adventure.”
Ha! More beautiful lies... right?!

For though I am wretched and weak, my
Will is strong.
Though I must traverse the desert alone. I know that I am enough.

Watcher in the twilight, guardian of the lost!
Great Anubis, protector of souls, I beg of you,
Hold back the jackals, guide me through this wasteland.
Lead me in the darkness, bring me to the morning light.

The ecstasy of the waning Blood Moon has brought me here.
The Dark Night of the Soul has swaddled
me in beautiful blackness,
The fallacy of security sings to me, the illusion of instant peace
Blinded by pleasure, all pain extinguished.

This corporeal form, fragile it may be,
It is as delicate as crepe paper,
Time marches on, this body will fail,
Yet the soul remains: infinite, resilient,
adaptive.

For though I am wretched and weak, my
Will is strong.
Though I must traverse the desert alone. I know that I am enough.

Invocation of Khonsu

Written by: Frater James

333-333-333

O Thee Thee I invoke
Thou ancient child of night
Whose name is traveler
Timeless devourer
Who feeds the pharaoh blood
Enemy of demons
The healer of the sick
O Thee thee I invoke
Child of Amun, Child of Mut

Khonsu!

Thou hawk headed lord of time
Who bares the book, Year's End
Wherein is each life's length
Thou lord of birth and death
Of waxing and waning
Who still a child is dead
Skin mottled green and white
Thou endless traveler
Who Goes and Goes and Goes

Khonsu!

(Pause)

I can not speak the name
It is terror in my mouth
I have seen your pale light
Tasted the wine of your pearls
Felt the pull of your wing
Smelled the stench of your blood
Thou bringest life which is death
I have worshiped you
I have cursed your name
But yet you go and go

(spiral dance windershines)

Khonsu
Khonsu pa-khared
Khonsu pa-ir-sekher
Khonsu heseb-ahau
Khonsu emwaset nefer-hetep
Khonsu-la
Khonsu-thoth
Khonsu
Khenes

(spiral dance windershines)

(Fall to the ground)

Expression

𐎏

The beating of wings
Against the still of night
The bearer of the light
That shines from the unseen
I am come I am come
At my passing all swoons
With joy and health and strength
This is the lord of life
This is the comforter
The crusher of the weak

(Rise slowly, visualize Khonsu as mummified child)

This is he who alights
With swooping silent grace
Who feeds on pearls of blood
Sign of life eternal
I am come for thee
I shall devour thee whole
This is the voice of night
This is the wanderer
The son of the unseen

Khenes, the traveler!

𐎏

(Take on god form of Khonsu as hawk)
I am! I am! I am!
From the crown I am come,
Striking the heart of earth!
Reflecting the sun's light.
I am the prince of Thebes
Angry one of the gods
Reared by she lions
To hunt in the darkness.
And stamp down the wicked

I am the gentle one
He who quickens the babe
And casts light in darkness
Bloody twin of pharaohs

Sealed up in the womb
Who dies upon his birth.
The triple faced night lord
The triple formed hawk-child
The triple wanded God

Khonsu!
(Spiral dance windershines)

𐎏

You are come unto me
With your side lock of youth
Lips bloody from slaughter.
I can taste your kisses
And feel the sweeping wings
I am full of terror
Your rapture is on me
Your bliss fills me with awe
You are come unto me

Khonsu!

I am the traveler
I am the angry God
I am the holy guide
Lesser Gods and Demons
Quake in my pale shadow
For their days are numbered
I mark the length of years
And the span of each life
Lord of the illusion

Khonsu!

I hear thy voice in me
The cry of the hawk
Thy feet tread over me
I am pressed into pulp
White blood falls from heaven
Sweet and bitter as life
Ah thy terror and joy
The sign of thy coming
Come unto me, to me!

Khanes!

Power handed to the undeserved;
The fault still lies in me.
How does one mend such jagged cracks?
Reclaim, and thus, fly free.

A hunt for all, without relent;
For none are welcome here.
They monger hate and stoke pure ire;
Their sustenance is fear.

These pristine halls are sullied by;
The presence of their kind.
Follow the filth, follow the stench;
They won't be hard to find.

So round them up, bid them adieu;
And build a holy pyre.
Smile as you cast them one by one;
Headlong into the fire.

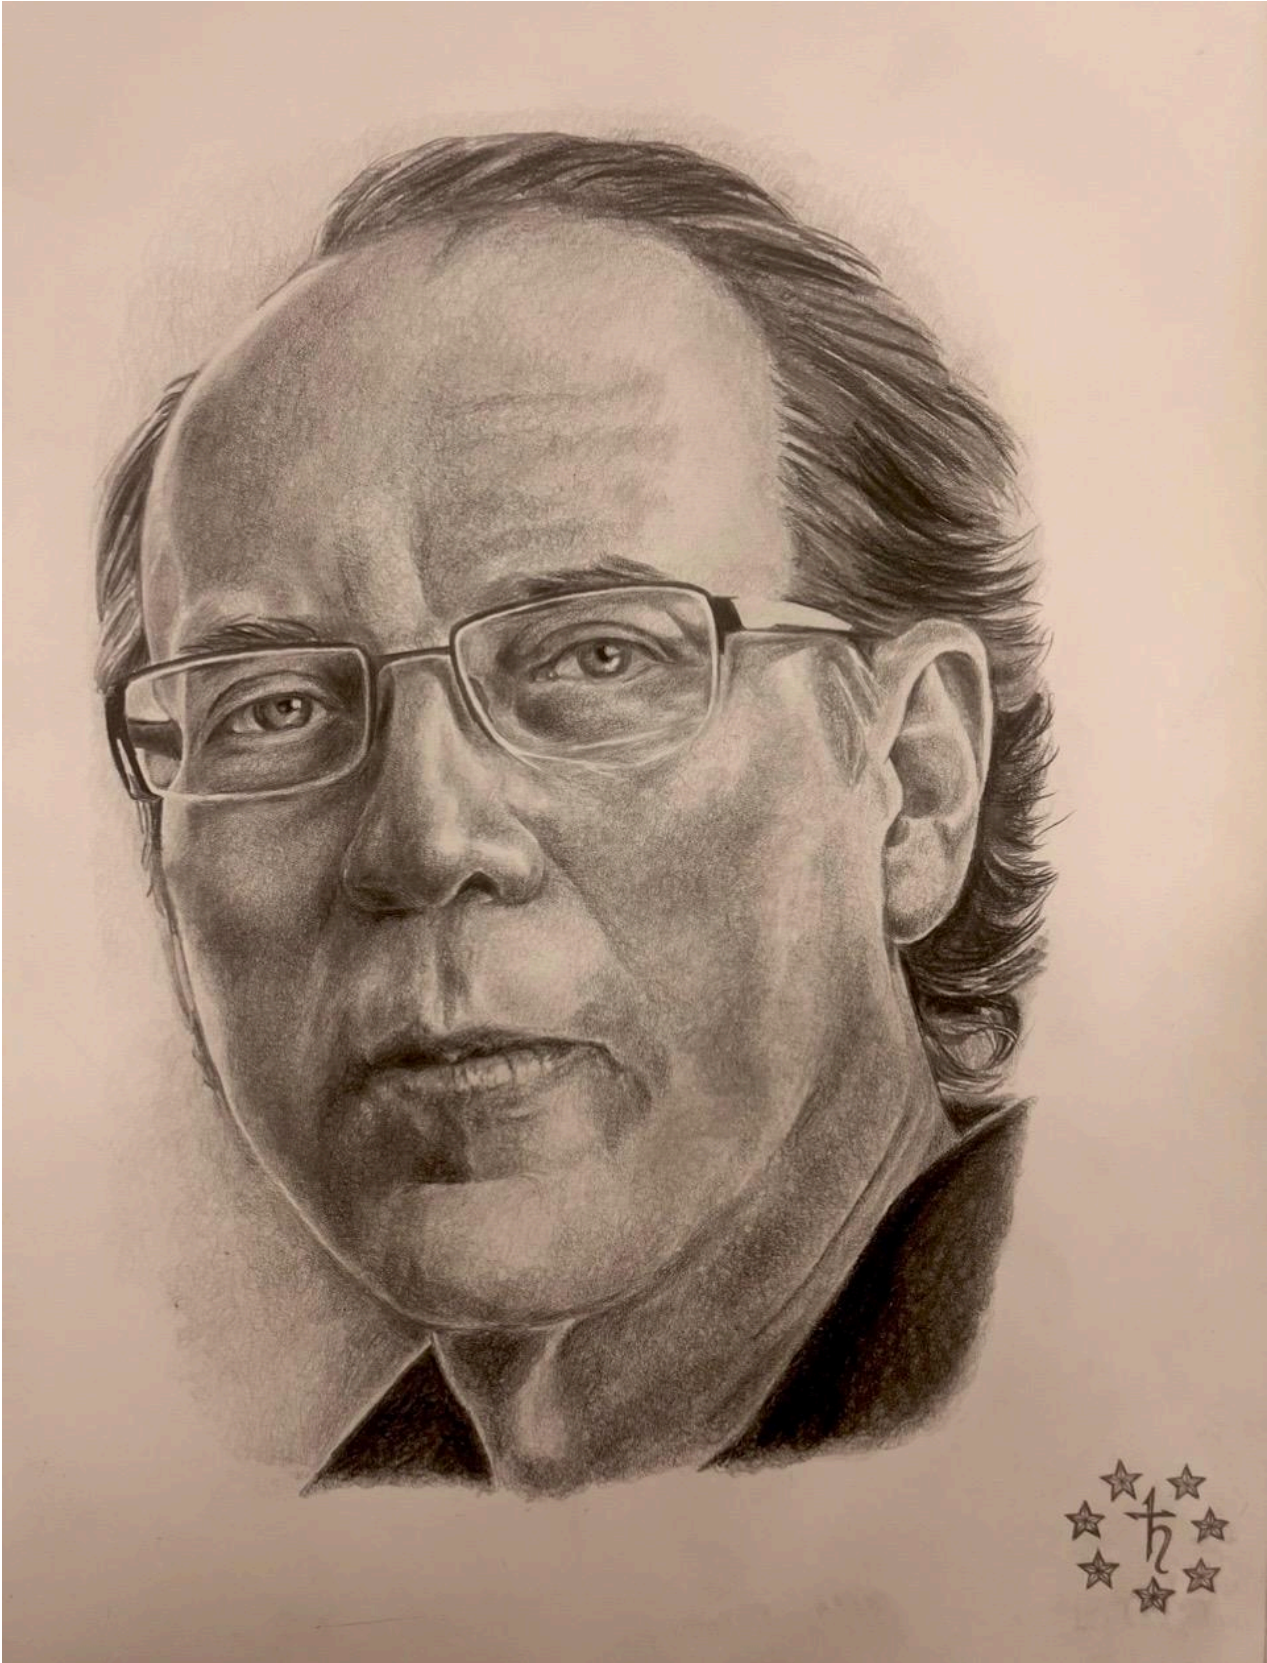

Familiar, burning flesh smells sweet;
It ne'er will stir again.
Ancestors come to warm their bones;
And banish this fell sin.

For it was born of their great pain;
'Tis why they aid me now.
'Twas I who sought to break the chains;
And keep intact the bough.

And when the ashes are all gone;
The halls swept clean of mire.
In naked silence I shall rest;
And be One with the fire.

Winds and Stars:

Lessons in Will and Truth from Aleister Crowley

Written By: Lilith Vala Xara

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

Aleister Crowley's writings challenge us to look beyond the superficial, to question everything, and to seek out our own unique paths with courage and authenticity. In this compilation, Crowley's words weave a tapestry of lessons: the necessity of self-discovery, the danger of blind faith, the pursuit of truth at all costs, and the strength required to rise above societal complacency.

This is not merely a collection of quotes; it is a journey. Each line offers a glimpse into the heart of Thelemic philosophy—a call to action for those who dare to embrace their will and reject the trivialities of the “empty-headed Athenians” of our world. It is a meditation on the paradox of faith and doubt, the defiance of convention, and the cosmic perspective that places love at the core of all things.

As you read Crowley's words, let them challenge you. Allow his insights to spark questions, to unsettle comfortable assumptions, and to inspire you to align with your true purpose. Herein lies not just wisdom but the provocation to live fully and authentically, guided by the higher principles of will and love.

“In conformity with the practice which you may perhaps choose to adopt later, given in Liber Thisharb sub figura CMXIII, paragraphs 27-38, Magick, pp. 420-422, you must find an answer to the question : ‘How did I come to be in this place at this time, engaged in this particular work?’” —Crowley, Aleister et al, In Magick without Tears, 3. Phoenix, AZ: Falcon Press, 2001. (First published in 1954).

“One would go mad if one took the Bible seriously; but to take it seriously one must be already mad.”

—Crowley, Aleister, and Hymenaeus Beta, In Magick: Magick: Liber Aba: Book 4, 116. Boston, Md: Weiser Books, 1997.

"15. Nevertheless have the greatest self-respect, and to that end sin not against thyself. The sin which is unpardonable is knowingly and wilfully to reject truth, to fear knowledge lest that knowledge pander not to thy prejudices."

—Crowley, Aleister, "Liber Librae." In The Equinox: the Official Organ of the A. . A. . the Review of Scientific Illuminism, Volume 1, No. 1, 30–35. London: Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton, Kent & CO. LTD., 1909.

"I slept with faith and found a corpse in my arms on awakening; I drank and danced all night with doubt and found her a virgin in the morning."

—Crowley, Aleister. "45," In The Book of Lies, Which Is Also Falsely Called Breaks: the Wanderings or Falsifications of the One Thought of Frater Perdurabo (Aleister Crowley), Which Thought Is Itself Untrue, 96. San Francisco, CA: Weiser Books, 2016.

"But the conscience of the world is so guilty that it always assumes that people who investigate heresies must be heretics; just as if a doctor who studies leprosy must be a leper. Indeed, it is only recently that science has been allowed to study anything without reproach."

—Crowley, Aleister, John Symonds, Kenneth Grant, In The Confessions of Aleister Crowley: an Autobiography, 144. London: Arkana, 1989. (First published in 1979).

"It is necessary, in this world, to be made of harder stuff than one's environment."
—Crowley, Aleister, In Moonchild: a Prologue, 252. San Francisco, Calif: Weiser, 2010. (First published in 1923).

"I thought perhaps I might do some good,
But its ten to one if I ever should—
And I doubt I would save, if I could,
Such empty-headed Athenians."

—Crowley, Aleister, "Empty-Headed Athenians." Poem. In Knox Om Pax: Essay in Light, xii. New York: Walter Scott, 1907.

"I never approved the super-subtlety of Huxley's campaign against Gladstone; and as for Swinburne, he died outright when he became respectable. Adaptation to one's environment makes for a sort of survival; but after all, the supreme victory is only won by those who prove themselves of so much hardier stuff than the rest that no power on earth is able to destroy them.”

—Crowley, Aleister, John Symonds, Kenneth Grant, In The Confessions of Aleister Crowley: an Autobiography, 59. London: Arkana, 1989. (First published in 1979).

“The people who have really made history are the martyrs.”

—Crowley, Aleister, John Symonds, Kenneth Grant, In The Confessions of Aleister Crowley: an Autobiography, 59. London: Arkana, 1989. (First published in 1979).

“I’m more at home with the winds and the stars
Than with empty-headed Athenians.”

—Crowley, Aleister, “Empty-Headed Athenians.” Poem. In Knox Om Pax: Essay in Light, xii-xii. New York: Walter Scott, 1907.

“I’ve written this to keep from crying. But I am crying, only the tears won’t come.”

—Crowley, Aleister, In The Diary of a Drug Fiend, 164–65. London: Collins, 1922.

The lessons within these quotes are timeless. They speak to anyone willing to rise above the mundane, to reject mediocrity, and to align with the stars rather than the crowd. Crowley’s disdain for the trivialities of the “empty-headed Athenians” is not cynicism but a call to transcend the limits of conformity and ignorance, to chart one’s course with integrity and resolve.

May these reflections inspire you to honor your own will, to seek truth without fear, and to embrace the paradoxical beauty of faith, doubt, and cosmic love. For in these principles lies the essence of Thelema: the union of individual will with universal harmony.

Love is the law, love under will.

Cosmic Astrology Column

Written by: Soror Chizu

Edited by: Frater Rydeon

Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law.

I want to wish everyone a Happy New Year! Themes you can anticipate over the next month involve setting goals, addressing habits, and seeking the best opportunities as the year unfolds. This year marks the 249th birthday of the United States of America. I created an Inceptional Chart to highlight the founding of our nation and how the energy that existed then continues to evolve and resonate today.

The exact time of the U.S. natal chart remains speculative, with the most commonly used rectified chart being one popularized by Ebenezer Sibly (1751–1799), an English physician and occult writer. Known as the “Sibly Chart,” it sets the time at 5:10 p.m. EST. This version is the basis for the analysis presented in this article. The included image below is an example of the chart, serving as the foundation for a new divinatory exercise still in its early stages of development.

To begin, take the selected indicator chart and place at the center and layer a Transit Chart found on the outer zodiacal wheel. This method reveals planetary alignments between the two charts and their corresponding houses. Using the whole-sign house division system allows for correlating representations of themes over the upcoming 12 months.

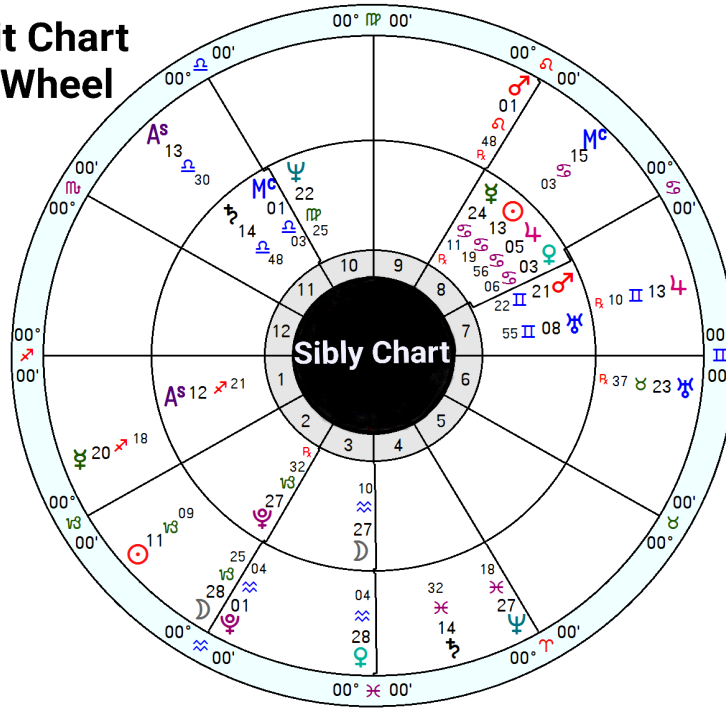

According to the Sibly Chart, the U.S. Ascendant (rising) is in Sagittarius, the Sun is in Cancer, and the Moon is in Aquarius. Using synastry, I will compare the Sibly Chart with the New Year’s chart to formulate predictions based on the interactions of aspects and planetary conditions. Emphasis is placed on the closest aspects, as tighter orbs intensify the interplay of energies involved.

In this approach, the First House represents January, the Second House February, and so on, with each house symbolizing a month during one calendar year. The predictions included are my interpretations, and I encourage the skeptical mind to apply the scientific method to test for overall efficacy. If you are new to astrology, I recommend starting with your own Natal Chart to create a personal connection to the topic before proceeding with this method. The ultimate goal is to define the components of your chart and relate them to your interpretations. Then you can begin to formulate your own predictions to enhance the practice.

I wish everyone a fantastic year, filled with light, life, love, and liberty always!

Sun in Capricorn:

The Sun in Capricorn inspires discipline, self-awareness, and a focus on long-term goals. March 2025: Transit Pluto at 01.04° Aquarius, Transit Venus at 28.04° Aquarius

March brings a blend of transformation, power dynamics, and creative renewal as Pluto and Venus transit through Aquarius. This month invites introspection, innovation, and a focus on relationships, urging you to strike a balance between intense personal growth and lighthearted connection.

Pluto in Aquarius:

Pluto symbolizes transformation, endings, and the reclamation of personal power. As it transits Aquarius, themes of innovation and collective progress come to the forefront. This is a powerful time to merge comfort with the unfamiliar, fostering growth while maintaining stability. However, the intense energy carried over from February may feel overwhelming at times, particularly in areas of conflict or control.

Key guidance:

- Avoid confrontational or combative behaviors, as they could escalate tensions unnecessarily.
 - Focus on spiritual practices or creative outlets, as Pluto's energy is highly potent for magical or transformative work.
 - Use this time to reflect on your broader goals and align your actions with your deeper purpose.

Venus in Aquarius:

Venus, representing love, beauty, and pleasure, adds a softer, more social energy to the month. Its placement in Aquarius encourages connection, creativity, and a forward-thinking approach to relationships. However, surprises or disruptions may arise, requiring flexibility and adaptability.

Key guidance:

- Be honest and open about your emotions, as clear communication will help avoid misunderstandings.
 - Focus on self-care and allow your creativity to flourish. Look to art, music, and beauty as sources of inspiration.
 - Keep an eye on financial matters, as Venus's influence may bring unexpected shifts in resources or values.

Divination

Balancing Pluto and Venus:

This month's energy is a delicate dance between the heaviness of Pluto and the lightheartedness of Venus. While Pluto demands introspection and resolve, Venus provides opportunities for joy and connection. Use Venus's social energy to balance Pluto's transformative intensity, fostering harmony in your relationships and within yourself.

Key Themes and Guidance for March:

- Avoid engaging in power struggles; focus instead on transformation and growth through constructive means.
- Lean into Venus's energy to balance the intensity of Pluto—whether through art, relationships, or socializing.
- Financial vigilance is critical; unexpected changes may occur, requiring flexibility and planning.

March sets the stage for meaningful change, providing both the challenges and tools necessary for personal evolution.

Divination

April 2025: Transit Saturn at 14.32° Pisces, Transit Neptune at 27.18° Pisces

April brings a mix of structure and spirituality as Saturn and Neptune transit Pisces. This month emphasizes the need for balance between responsibility and creative inspiration, with both planets urging you to align your daily life with deeper, more meaningful goals.

Saturn in Pisces:

Saturn governs structure, discipline, and responsibility, and its transit through Pisces can feel like a paradox. Pisces, a mutable water sign, leans into fluidity and dreams, which may seem at odds with Saturn's need for boundaries and focus. This tension could manifest as delays in business or challenges in maintaining clear communication.

Key guidance:

- Tackle obligations one step at a time to avoid feeling overwhelmed.
 - Engage in projects that allow you to shine while contributing to your personal and professional growth.
 - Seek wisdom from older or more experienced individuals who can offer guidance and long-term perspectives.
 - Use this time to refine your approach to commitments, ensuring they align with your higher aspirations.

Neptune in Pisces:

Neptune, ruler of Pisces, is particularly potent in its domicile. It emphasizes creativity, spirituality, and dreams, bringing a deeply magical energy to the month. However, Neptune can also blur boundaries, leading to misunderstandings or confusion if not approached with clarity and awareness.

Key guidance:

- Tap into your intuition and pay attention to dreams, as they may hold meaningful messages.
 - Immerse yourself in artistic or mystical pursuits, as these can lead to profound insights and collaborations.
 - Practice clear and compassionate communication to minimize misunderstandings.
 - Remain mindful of illusions or deceptions—whether from others or self-created—and ground yourself in reality when necessary.

Divination

Balancing Saturn and Neptune:

The interplay of Saturn and Neptune this month challenges you to integrate structure with creativity. Saturn encourages discipline and responsibility, while Neptune calls for fluidity and spiritual connection. Together, they ask you to find harmony between the practical and the mystical.

Key themes:

- Use Saturn's grounding energy to give form to Neptune's dreams. For instance, begin building the foundation for a creative project or spiritual practice.
- Embrace activities that allow for both discipline and inspiration, such as structured meditation, mindful movement, or artistic routines.
- Avoid overcommitting yourself; balance your obligations with moments of reflection and relaxation.

Key Themes and Guidance for April:

- Combine discipline and creativity to create something meaningful and enduring.
- Seek wisdom and support from mentors or guides.
- Focus on refining your responsibilities while remaining open to inspiration.
- Use Neptune's mystical energy to tap into your intuition and explore new artistic or spiritual horizons.

April offers a chance to merge the practical with the transcendent, setting the stage for a fulfilling and transformative journey ahead.

This opens a unique opportunity for reflection, personal growth, and reconnecting with your passions. With fewer external planetary influences, you're invited to take the lead in shaping your experiences and goals.

Themes of Aries:

Aries, a cardinal fire sign, is associated with courage, independence, and initiative. Without planets transiting this house, its influence becomes more subtle, encouraging you to turn inward and focus on how you channel Aries' bold energy in your own life.

Key guidance:

- Use this time to reflect on where you can take initiative or assert leadership in your personal and professional life.
 - Revisit goals set earlier in the year and evaluate your progress. Are there areas where you could infuse more drive and determination?
 - Embrace opportunities for rest and rejuvenation, allowing yourself to recharge before the more active months ahead.

 - Pay attention to your dreams, as they may reveal messages from your subconscious.
 - Channel intense emotions into creative or spiritual outlets for healthy expression.
 - Embrace change as an opportunity for growth and renewal.

Now that we have applied the aforementioned method, I encourage you to reference your own Natal Chart to gather personal insights and associations with the planetary influences. Change remains a constant force in our lives, and astrology offers a lens through which we can observe and engage with it.

Using the Sibly Chart as a foundation, I applied forward movement to examine separating aspects and focused on applying orbs to understand the future direction, particularly as it pertains to society. To enhance this analysis, I created a Progressed Chart using the Sibly Chart as an example. This step helps to observe and compare overlapping aspects in both charts, showcasing the connections between the past and present. The themes that shaped the founding of this nation continue to resonate and evolve in modern society.

The outer planets—Neptune and Pluto—move slowly, making them generational influences. Their continued activity reveals recurring themes of transformation and collective introspection. For example, the Transit Moon’s strong conjunction with both Sibly and Progressed Pluto suggests a blending of energies that influence personal and societal dynamics. This alignment calls for exploring the shadow aspects of the psyche, which can lead to profound self-awareness and empathy for others.

Divination

While transformation is often a challenging process, it provides the opportunity for meaningful growth. Prosperity can flourish as long as resources—both personal and collective—are managed responsibly. However, with Transit Mars in the Progressed Chart forming challenging aspects to Pluto, there may be moments of impulsivity, heightened physical motivations, or power struggles. It is important to balance action with self-care, setting aside time for leisure and understanding your limitations. Take responsibility for what you can genuinely offer, and communicate directly and concisely to avoid misunderstandings or latent discontent in relationships.

Significant breakthroughs may require clearing away old patterns or beliefs. Transit Uranus forming a trine with Neptune creates refreshing, innovative energy that supports creativity and technological advancements. This aspect may inspire the use of new mediums or methods to express ideas in futuristic and meaningful ways. A revisiting of past aspirations can lead to a revised set of beliefs that align with the continued evolution of both individuals and society.

As Pluto begins its age in Aquarius, honest discussions about human rights, community, and legacy will guide necessary reforms over the next 19 years. Transit Neptune opposing Neptune in the Sibly and Progressed Charts mirrors the journey of a seed growing into a fully bloomed flower—a culmination of work initiated in the past. This moment invites us to forge new visions for the future, promoting healthy, community-focused ways of living. Whether you choose to actively participate in the dance of life or observe from the sidelines, this year will offer profound opportunities for self-discovery.

Finally, Transit Pluto's conjunction with itself in both example charts signifies a time of resolution and new beginnings. The impactful Pluto return has concluded, marking the start of another 248-year journey. This remarkable period has revealed important lessons that continue to manifest in our lives, connecting us as a collective. Reflect on your whole sign house ruled by Aquarius to anticipate how this significant shift in Pluto's influence might shape your year ahead.

This method is most effective when used alongside daily transits to track patterns and how they interact with your natal configurations. Pay special attention to eclipse seasons, as they bring insurmountable energy that can be channeled into your magical operations. I deeply appreciate the opportunity to share this exercise and welcome constructive feedback to refine the practice further. As I conclude, I raise a proverbial cup to all members of Khonsu in honor of your ongoing hard work and success in becoming an Oasis. Wishing everyone a happy and memorable year ahead!

The Thelemic Cookbook: Cooking with Correspondences

By: Liti-Luise Chappell

From Chapter 34, A Feast in the Sign of Capricorn, side dishes:

Swiss Chard Gruyere Gratin

These fresh and tasty healthy greens get even better with the addition of the cheese and breadcrumb topping, which crisp up an otherwise soft-steamed vegetable. A favorite.

Ingredients

3 pounds chopped Swiss chard, chopped
2 cups grated Gruyere cheese
1 cup yellow onion, chopped
1 teaspoon fresh garlic, minced
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup peanut oil
1 cup breadcrumbs
¼ cup butter, softened
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper

Directions

Thoroughly wash the chard leaves, trim them down the center of their stalks, chop them up and then set aside. Prepare the garlic and onion, and grate the cheese.

In a large frying pan heat 2 tablespoons of oil and sauté the garlic and onions until translucent, and set aside. Put the next two tablespoons of oil in the pan, add the chopped chard and the lemon juice, and cover to lightly steam for 2 to 3 minutes until the chard reduces by half. When done, put the chard in a strainer over the mixing bowl to release the extra liquid and then discard the liquid. Cool down the chard.

In a large mixing bowl beat the eggs and add the onion, the drained chard, and one cup of the grated Gruyere cheese. Mix well and then turn into an oiled 9" x 13" pan. Mix the second cup of Gruyere cheese, the breadcrumbs, butter, salt, and pepper together to make a crumb and sprinkle it over the top of the chard mixture. Bake in a 375° F (190° C) oven for 30 minutes until the egg sets and the topping becomes a golden brown.
